There are now two foreign monarchs serving in the army of her Majesty the Queen; namely, the King of Hanover and the King of the Belgians, both of whom are Field Marshals. There are only two other Field Marshals, the Dukes of Wellington and Cambridge.

AFFECTING SCENE. An aged man named Bonvolant, appeared before the 6th chamber, charged with the "crime" of mendacity. While answering to the usual question of the President a young man, accompanied by his wife, advanced towards the bar and turning his eyes towards Bonvolant, wept aloud. The name of this individual, as it afterwards appeared, is Bonvet, whip maker, his address No. 8, Rue St. Anstase; and we feel pleasure in recording them in connection with an anecdote which enables human nature. President. "Why do you weep?" Bonvet. "Sir, I know that poor old man; I know him as one knows a father, for he was a father to me! It was he who took care of my infancy; it was he who brought me up; and to see him thus reduced in his old age; my wife and I are come to beg of you, gentlemen, to have the goodness to give him to our care. We will treat him kindly. Mr President: we will do for him in his helplessness what he did for me in mine! The young wife of Bonvet (shedding tears) "Oh! yes, Mr President, we will take care of poor Mr Bonvolant, who was so good to my husband when he was but a little destitute child; do sit let us have him, pray gentlemen, don't refuse us!" During these affecting supplications it is impossible to describe the joy, the admiration, the ineffable expression of delight that beamed on the faces of that aged man, who found a triumph where he had only dared to hope for pity. The audience, the judges themselves, evinced deep emotion, and one of the latter, much to his honor, shed tears. Mr President Mathias, in pronouncing Bonvolant's acquittal, thus addressed him: "You see my good old man, that a benevolent action never goes unrewarded. You generously protected Bonvet in his childhood, and to-day he and his young wife come nobly forward to shelter your gray hairs. The tribunal feels its happy in surrendering you to their affection and their gratitude." (Gulzmann's Paris) Messrs.

SHIPWRECK AND LOSS OF LIFE.—We learn the following particulars relative to the loss of the Brig North Carolina on Lake Michigan, from the Cleveland Herald. The vessel left Chicago on Sunday the 20th ult. having several passengers on board, the number not known. Several more are known to have got on board of her at Michigan City. On the arrival of the Bunker Hill at Mackinaw, they learned that there was a vessel capsized upon Lake Michigan, about forty miles distant. The Bunker Hill immediately returned, and found the North Carolina capsized, and had under water, and her spars much broken. The vessel was so deep in the water that all efforts to get into the cabin were fruitless. On the return of the Bunker Hill, two boats were despatched from Mackinaw to the wreck. Every soul on board must have perished, as the wreck was about 20 miles from the shore. There was quite a number of passengers on board the North Carolina, according to our informant.

P. S. We have since learned that the Bunker Hill towed the wreck a few miles. Fifteen lives are supposed to be lost.—Buffalo Journal.

PIGEONS. VALLEY OF THE MAUMEE, June 28th, 1837. Pigeons are extremely numerous. The forests are thronged with them. They may be seen flying one flock strung after another, from the first wake of dawn until the darkness of evening obscures them, and for aught known to the contrary, they fly during the whole night.

Pigeons, some seasons, do great mischief to the corn and wheat. The voracity of each vast multitude sometimes exceeds any moderate computation. When the young corn is striking up from the ground, they will destroy a whole field of corn in forty to fifty acres in a very few days. When they have pitched upon a field, their temerity in maintaining their ground, is scarcely exceeded by the description of locusts in Africa. At these times they settle around upon the timber so as to break down the largest trees. They are as tame as doves in the streets of cities. They may be killed with whips. If a gun is discharged upon them, those near will rise up to alight in another place, and others will press forward to fill the space those vacated. To attempt to catch them in nets seems impotent folly. The destruction of thousands does not appear to them off. They would not be missed. Millions remain in spite of every effort to destroy them. But of a sudden, from a change of wind, a gentle breeze, or other unknown cause, they scatter off, and almost wholly disappear in a single day, leaving their eggs and young to be destroyed by insects or animals of prey.

Where those myriads of fowls came from, or where they go, is as uncertain as the rearing place of the wind. When they approach, they came like a cloud, in such vast numbers, so dense, so extensive, that the shadow of a flock is like the return of white fleecy clouds after a storm. The sun is, at intervals, completely shut out until the masses, always flying with the wind, have passed over. At such times, they devour not only corn, but whole fields of wheat, and forests of acorns, beech nuts, black berries, and all sorts of plums and fruit, evaporates if found.

This season, they have yet done very little damage. It is fine sport to clip off their heads with a rifle—and there are various ways of taking them. One is to prepare the "bed" with a net, and near it have an abutment. Having previously taken two pigeons from "decoys" the one of them with a thread, any convenient length from fifty to hundred yards and the other must be tied on a tilting stick, which may be made to rise and fall at pleasure, having first bluffed or pasted their eyes.

When a flock is seen approaching, the first pigeon is sent off. It soon gains the length of the cord, and, after several unsuccessful attempts, to escape, it circles around, hangs while in the air, and gradually descends or is drawn down by the sportsman. The other with its feet tied on the stick, is gently drawn up and down, so as to make it flutter, when the flock alight upon the bed and commence eating the net being sprung on them, they are secured.

Some bait them with wheat or corn, without decoys. Some catch them in large wooden pens. By taking them in through a small aperture, they do not find their way out again.

The Grand River Journal gives the following musical anecdote that occurred at the first attempt to launch the steamboat Milwaukee, which failed in consequence of not being able to get her to move, after knocking away the blocks: "While efforts to launch the Milwaukee were making, but without success, the band on board the boat Daniel Webster struck up the air, 'Oh, dear, what can the matter be,' which was promptly replied to by the band on board the Milwaukee, with 'Setting on a rail.'"

Mysterious.—A few weeks since, as our readers will recollect, we copied a notice into our paper, of the elopement of a young lady from Vermont, in company with a person said to be a tailor. It was supposed had gone into the State of Maine. We gave a place to the following narrative, thinking it may possibly reflect some light on the subject, and afford a clue by which the mystery may be solved; as we think it highly probable, that the persons spoken of in the narrative, may be the same alluded to in the notice to which we have referred. The facts we relate are from a responsible source, and may be relied on.

Some time last winter, not far from Christmas, a man came to the house of Mr. Eben Arnold, a respectable citizen, residing near the village called Centreville, in Warwick, in this State, and introduced a lady to the family. The lady was received into the family. Some time subsequently, she gave birth to a female child. She however survived the birth of her child but a short time.

During the residence of the lady in the family of Mr. Arnold, she studiously concealed her name and every circumstance which could give a clue to the discovery of her family and friends. Her lips were sealed on this subject, and she died without having been known in the family by any other name than that of Mary.

She had the appearance of a person of about twenty years of age; of a gentle figure, and apparently well educated. Her complexion was very light, her skin somewhat freckled, and what is remarkable for such a complexion, she had black eyes. Her manners and her conduct were such, that she gained the affection of all who became acquainted with her. When she came to Mr. Arnold's she brought some vest with her, to make, and which the man who accompanied her, took away on his second visit to her.

The man appeared to be about forty years of age. He had the look of a respectable person, and a pleasing address and manners. He was evidently unaccustomed to any laborious occupation, and might be supposed a merchant or a tailor. He assumed to be the agent of some other person, in this unhappy affair; but the affection with which he was treated by the suffering victim during her illness, pointed him out as the author of her ruin, and the cause of her death. The circumstances caused much feeling and excitement among the neighbors; and finally he consented to go for the father of the lady. He accordingly went; and returned in company with a person whom he passed off as her father, but who, it is believed, was an impostor, and leagued with the unprincipled seducer, to carry out the deception. The pretended agent, in other words, the vile seducer, of an innocent and lovely female, and ultimate cause of her unhappiness and untimely fate, disappeared immediately after the termination of the fatal tragedy; but would be readily recognized by many.

The unfortunate lady had every attention from the family of Mr. Arnold, during her illness, which affection could die, and, suffering humanity demand. Every medical assistance, which her attending physician, Dr. Jewett, was capable of extending to her, as well as that of other eminent physicians with whom he consulted, was rendered, but in vain. Her malady defied their skill, and she fell, the victim of an inhuman monster. Her mortal remains he buried in the grounds of Mr. Arnold, where they were interred by the direction of the agent in this diabolical affair. Her babe, which survived the fate of its unhappy mother, was humanely taken by a gentleman, in whose family it now remains; in this city; and by whom it will be nurtured and reared up to womanhood, should a kind Providence permit.—Providence Morning Courier.

It has been finally decided in New York, by the courts of the last appeal, that Banks are liable to village taxation. This is an important decision, considering the great number of Banks in that state.

The Auld Gray Mare.—An honest farmer, a few miles from Dumfries, was often found fault with by his wife for staying too late in the town on market nights. At last she set out with him one day herself, and in the evening forced him home rather sooner than he wished. Accordingly, they mounted the old gray mare, he on the saddle, and she on the pad behind him. They rode on till they came to a small brook that crossed the road when the mare put down her head to drink, and, after being satisfied, again went on. "Now," said the goodwife, "if you would do like the mare—when she has enough, she stops of her own accord and goes on; and can't you do the same?" "True, goodwife," said he, "but if there were an auld gray mare on the other side o' the strand, and the aye saying to the other, 'Here's t'ye, and here's t'ye,' there's na telling when they would part."

NILES' WEEKLY REGISTER.—The last number of the valuable journal states that after the first day of September next the publication office of the paper will be removed from Baltimore to Washington City. No periodical contains better statistical information for future reference or present use, or a more useful collection of state papers and public addresses, than will be found in the columns of the Register. It has strong claims for support as a national work.

John Lathrop's Estate. WE the subscribers, having been appointed by the Hon. the Probate Court for the District of Chittenden, commissioners to receive, examine and adjust the claims and demands of all persons, against the estate of John Lathrop, late of Burlington, in said District, deceased, represented insolvent, and also all claims and demands exhibited in offset thereto; and six months from the day of the date hereof, being allowed by said Court for that purpose, we do therefore give notice, that we will attend to the business of our appointment, at the dwelling of Charles Adams, in Burlington, in said District, on the first Mondays of October and November next, at 10 o'clock, A. M., on each of said days.

Dated, this 23d day of June A. D. 1837. CHARLES ADAMS, J. Commis. ELISHA BARSTOW, J. Commis.

An Invaluable Remedy Tested by experience, and sustained by testimonials! MOST people have a remedy for CORNS as well as other complaints:—but the proprietor of the long known and justly celebrated

Albion Corn Plaster! (as prepared by the late Dr. Conway) has been made acquainted with no instance of the proper application, in which it has not been preferred to all other REMEDIES for CORNS, those painful, figurative of the feet, and enemies to locomotion.

The Albion Corn Plaster softens the corn, however old and tough, and extracts it to the very roots. The relief afforded is gentle, immediate, and thorough. The Proprietor begs leave to submit the following case, from Mr. Stowell, who is well known to the inhabitants of this city, especially at the south end, and at South Boston, as a very worthy and respectable citizen.

A CASE. Sir—I do not hesitate to give my most unqualified approbation in favor of your valuable Albion Corn Plaster. By the use of less than a box, Mr. Stowell has been cured of a corn on each foot, which had been exceedingly troublesome and painful for years, and I think it but justice to your invaluable preparation to add, (for the encouragement of those, who owing to repeated disappointments in the various remedies resorted to, have finally despaired of a cure,) that your Plaster cured her corns after trying other highly recommended remedies to no purpose; and what increases my confidence in the superiority of your Plaster, is the fact, that it has been used by several of my neighbours with equally good success. A man advanced in years, had become so crippled with corns, as to be obliged to cut holes in shoes to ease his feet; he had long suffered great torture and inconvenience—has lately been entirely cured by the use of your Corn Plaster, so that he can now walk with comfort, and in whole shoes.—Another Case.—A young woman living near me, had become so lame in consequence of corns, as not to be able to go up and down stairs without great trouble, is now using the Plaster with the most happy success, and prospect of speedy cure.

I could refer to several other cases, were it necessary, but I have seen enough of the Plaster to satisfy me it is the best preparation in this country, or perhaps in any other, for the cure of Corns; and were its virtues generally known, I doubt whether you could prepare the article fast enough to meet the public demand.

(Signed) SETH STOWELL, Keeper of the Toll house, South Boston Bridge. Mr. T. KIDDER, Proprietor of the Conway Medicines. Boston, June 17th, 1839. *Price 50 cents.

DEBILITATED FEMALES. THE complaints peculiar to the female part of the community, have been long successfully treated by the administration of the Aromatic Pills, originally prescribed and compounded by Dr. RUFFE. They cleanse the blood from those disorders of the female constitution, for which the Pills are an efficient specific; they restore a free circulation, reform the irregular operations of the sanguiferous system, and rectify the disordered habits. The proprietor's confidence in the superior excellence of this equally innocent and powerful preparation, is founded on the most decisive testimony from many restored patients. He can assure this portion of the public, that when

Dr. Ruffe's AROMATIC PILLS FOR FEMALES. are regularly taken according to the directions accompanying them, they revive and establish the disordered healthy habits, and restore to the pallid countenance the natural glow of health and good spirits.

The Pills are an approved general remedy in cases of Obstructions; Debility; Hypochondria; Green Sickness; Giddiness; Palpitation of the Heart; bad Digestion; Loathing of Food; Pain of the Stomach; Shortness of Breath upon every little motion; Sinking of the Spirits, and its consequences, a dejected countenance, and dislike for exercise and conversation.

Married ladies will find the Pills equally useful, except in cases of pregnancy, when they must not be taken; neither must they be taken by persons of hectic or consumptive habits. They may be used successfully by either men or women in all Hypochondria, Hysteria or Vapourish disorders. In all cases of this description, the Pills purify, invigorate, and rectify the disordered system.

Price $1.50 a box. "None genuine unless signed on the outside printed wrapper by the sole Proprietor, T. KIDDER, immediate successor to the late Dr. W. T. CONWAY. For sale, with all the other 'Conway Medicines,' at his Counting Room, No. 59, next door to J. Kidder's Drug Store, corner of Court and Hanover streets, near Concert Hall, Boston; and by his special appointment, by J. & J. H. PECK & Co., Burlington Vt.

TO WOOL GROWERS & DEALERS. THE Subscriber has opened a DEPOT FOR THE RECEPTION AND PUBLIC SALE OF AMERICAN AND FOREIGN WOOL, in the City of New-York. The First Sale will be announced as early as practicable, and afterwards continued at regular periods as may be deemed expedient.

The extent to which the growth and manufacture of this article has arrived in this country, forming as it does, one of the staples of production, as well as of extensive importation, renders the establishment of a regular market, where the Farmer can avail himself of the full prices paid by manufacturers, and where Manufacturers may, at stated periods find a full supply, and suit their purchases exactly according to their wants, is not only desirable, but absolutely necessary for the profit and convenience of both classes. To the Farmers especially it is an important, that they should enjoy a regular market and the advantage of full competition, instead of being compelled to submit to the prices offered by speculators, whose intimate knowledge of the wants of Manufacturers, and whose nicer judgment in the articles, has given them great advantage, and often compelled a great sacrifice on the part of the Farmer.

The city of New-York being by far the greatest market where Manufacturers find a sale for their fabrics, it is placed beyond a doubt, that, if the growers and dealers in Wool, avail themselves extensively of this opportunity of offering their Wool for sale, it will bring together, as purchasers, all the principal Manufacturers of the Northern States; and give, not only to the buyer and seller every advantage that can be offered, but regularity and stability to the market which has not before existed in this country, and which in other wool growing countries has been productive of the greatest benefit to all classes.

Satisfactory reference given on application, and to those who desire it, an advance in cash for a limited period will be made. Persons wishing to limit their wool in price, will have the advantage of a private sale in the best market, if the prices at public sale should not reach their expectation.

Persons wishing to enter their Wool for Sale, are desired to correspond early with the subscriber. JOHN A. PARKER. New York, July 18, 1837. Corner of Wall & South St.

Strayed or Stolen. FROM the subscriber, in this village, on or about the 24th of May last, a pale red or yellow, farrow COW, six years old; slim built—in this flesh at the time; little if any white excepting small spots inside the left hind leg, and perhaps of the right also; small horns, one (the left, it is believed,) as long or two shorter than the other, and a little lopped—the hair at the root of them worn off with a rope at the time she left home. If strayed, whoever will return her or give information where she may be found, shall be liberally rewarded; if stolen, whoever will take her into possession and inform the subscriber, may consider himself liberally allowed in payment of her at each value, and retain one-fourth the amount for information of both Cow and thief, one half the amount may be retained. C. P. BROADWELL. Burlington, Aug. 13, 1837.

Hinesburgh Academy. THE first term of this Institution will commence on Monday the 21st of August. The Board of trustees have engaged A. J. Samson, A. B. to take the charge of the Institution as Preceptor.

Tuition.—For common English branches $3.50, for the higher branches, including the languages $4.00. French will be taught on same conditions as other languages.

Board and incidentals will be furnished on reasonable terms. Such books as are used in the Academy can be purchased in this village, if desired.

Mr. Samson comes recommended with testimonials which give the Trustees full confidence in his ability and skill in teaching, and from his experience in kindred Institutions, we flatter ourselves that those who favour him with their patronage will not be disappointed.

F. WILLSON, Sec. Hinesburgh, July 26, 1837.

EXPERIMENT. Having tried two experiments this season that worked well, I have just been induced to try a third of the same kind, which when sold what it is, I think you will perfectly agree with me in the sentiment, it is now no less or more than what I went off to New York in March and got a few New Goods and sold them for cash, then in May I tried the same thing over, and found it to work equally well; then hearing that there was a great many more New Goods to be sold very cheap in New York for cash, I was off and got a lot, leaving they would soon be desired, which every body says will be the case by and by, without that I get better, for you know they are so hard the Farmers and people cannot work now. I am a friend to trade and hope all those who wish to buy will come and help me on to the experiment and get such things as they want while they can, for if no more goods should be made, it would be a great pity to be obliged to go without. My Experiment is not like the speculating kind—it is a way of increasing of showing through the incentives, but is warranted to both show out and wear out, in the doing of which the result, sentiment and deposit produced, is the real article to be desired, viz: Happiness, comfort and enjoyment. All to be had by applying at the Cheap-Fashionable-dry-Goods-Good and new general Variety-Store-to-be-had, in the Government, kept by S. EARL HOWARD. Burlington, July 20, 1837.
